

Dr. Don Stoeckel is a research hydrologist at the U. S. Geological Survey Water Science Center in Columbus, Ohio. He began working at the USGS after receiving his BS in Microbiology at the Ohio State University, MS in Environmental Science at University of Cincinnati, and PhD in Soil Microbiology at Auburn University. His research program at USGS focuses on evaluation and application of methods for microbial source tracking of fecal contamination.

Don Stoeckel
Research Hydrologist
U.S. Geological Survey
6480 Doubletree Ave
Columbus, OH 43229
Phone: (614)430-7780
e-mail: stoeckel@usgs.gov